

My name is Colton Macdonald, and I'm a third year Arts student majoring in Psychology. I will be running for the University Senate, University Council, Executive of Council, and the Arts Director in the upcoming URSU election. Currently, within the university I serve as a student member to the university council, as well as the Faculty of Arts council. While also sitting on the Arts Academic Program Development committee. I also serve as the president of the Psychology Students Association, in this role I organize educational and entertaining events put on for our fellow students. I volunteer in multiple psychology labs where I assist with ongoing research projects. Outside of the university I serve the Canadian Psychology Association as a campus representative, as a peer reviewer for a student operated academic journal, and as webmaster to the Rural and Northern Section. Within the community I hold various positions within the mental health field, working to improve the quality of life for my clients. Between my involvement of various volunteer roles and my jobs in the community I have gained the experience and insight needed to act as a voice for the students of the University of Regina. If elected, I would represent the interests of the student population, ensuring that issues of concern are being addressed. I would press the hard issues that many others would shy away from. Beyond that I would represent the university at a public level and help enhance the experience we have as students.
